

ABOUT US

SERVING THE TRAINING AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE NEEDS OF
INDIAN COUNTRY

NIJC is a 100% Native owned non-profit corporation with principal offices in Santa Rosa, California. NIJC was established in 1983 to create an independent national training and technical assistance
resource for Native communities
and tribal governments.
For more information, visit
<https://www.nijc.org>.

CONTACT US

5250 Aero Drive
Santa Rosa, CA 95403
Phone: (707) 579-5507
Fax: (707) 579-9019
E-Mail: TCoord@nijc.org
Website: <https://www.nijc.org>

CALIFORNIA TRIBAL CRISIS RESPONSE

TRAINING PROGRAM

ADMINISTERED BY THE
NATIONAL INDIAN JUSTICE CENTER

THE PROJECT

TRAININGS

RESOURCES

The training program promotes culturally relevant and trauma-informed strategies to respond to the needs of tribal victims of crime or natural disasters.

It is designed for tribal and non-tribal emergency responders, law enforcement, and those interested in volunteering to serve on a tribal crisis response team.

<https://www.nijc.org/tcr.html>

The TCR program provides 3-day regional training sessions using the full TCR curriculum. Due to public health orders associated with COVID-19, trainings are currently provided online using live and on-demand webinars and Moodle courses.

Stay tuned for upcoming trainings by clicking on the link below or going to our project webpage, and follow the links to register for the training session.

<https://www.nijc.org/tcr-trainings.html>

The training program provides effective tribal crisis response training, increases the number of trauma-informed tribal crisis responders, and most importantly, helps victims, survivors, and tribal communities cope and recover through outreach support.

The TCR searchable resource database may be accessed through the TCR program website

<https://www.nijc.org/tcr-resources.html>